

Day in the Life: Warehouse

Zebra for Android devices simplify operations and automate processes across the warehouse, from goods in to ship out.

skywire

AT GOODS IN

Jake uses the Mobility DNA SimulScan application on his TC8000 to quickly scan delivery documents. The results are highly accurate. Each document contains multiple barcodes, images, check boxes and lines of text, but SimulScan takes it all in and populates whole digital forms in one scan. Jake's received and logged the goods delivery in seconds.

PUT AWAY

Now the goods have to be put away, which is not a one-man job. The touch screen on Jake's TC8000 adapts to him wearing gloves, so he can easily summon help with a group voice message, using the PTT Express function within Workforce Connect.

PICKING

The hands-free feature on her multi-modal WT6000 wearable computer helps Sandy complete picking tasks faster. With TekSpeech 4 Pro allowing direct voice contact between operatives at any stage of the warehousing process, Zebra for Android helps to boost productivity for WT6000 users by 15%, with 39% fewer errors than speech-only wearables.

DROPPING

Sandy catches her WT6000 on a storage cage. It doesn't matter. It's built to withstand impacts, dust and water in the toughest of warehouse environments.

PACK AND SHIPPING

Lucy can pack and ship faster and more accurately than ever before, as TekSpeech Pro makes it easy to follow voice directions.
